Kendall's Spavin Cure.

The Most Successful Remedy ever discovered, as it is certain in its effects and does not blister. READ PROOF BELOW.

From Rev. P. N. GRANGER,

Presiding Elder of the St. Albans District,
ST. ALBANS, VT., Jan., 20, 1880.

Mr. B. J. KENDALL & Co., Gentls:—In reply to your letter I will say that my experience with Kendall's Spavin Cure has been very satisfactory indeed. Three or four years ago I procured a bottle of your agent, and with it, cured a horse of lameness caused by a spavin. Last season my horse became very lame and I turned him out for a few weeks when he became better, but when I put him on the road he grew worse, when I discovered that a rib-bone was forming, I procured a bottle of Kendall's Spavin Cure and with less than a bottle cured him so that he is not lame, neither can the bump be found.
Respectfully yours,
P. N. GRANGER.

Perseverance Will Tell.

STROUGHTON, MASS., March 16, 1880.

B. J. KENDALL & Co., Gentls:—In justice to you and myself, I think I ought to let you know that I have removed two bone spavins with Kendall's Spavin Cure, one very large one, don't know how long the spavin had been there. I have owned the horse eight months. It took me four months to take the large one off and two for the small one. I have used ten bottles. The horse is entirely well, not at all still, and no touch to be seen or felt. This is a wonderful medicine. It is a new thing here, but it does for all what it has done for me it will be very great.
Respectfully yours,
CHAS. E. PARKER.

KENDALL'S SPAVIN CURE is in its effects, mild in its action as it does not blister, yet it is penetrating and powerful to reach a every deep seated pain or to remove any bony growth or other enlargement, such as spavins, splints, curbs, callous, sprains, swellings, any lameness and all enlargements of the joints or limbs, or rheumatism in man and for any purpose for which a liniment is used for man or beast. It is now known to be the best liniment for man ever used, acting mild and yet certain in its effects.

Send address for illustrated Circular which we think gives positive proof of its virtues. No remedy has ever met with such unqualified success to our knowledge, for beast as well as man.

Price $1. per bottle, or six bottles for $5. ALL DRUGGISTS have it or can get it for you or it will be sent to any address on receipt of price by the proprietors. DR. B. J. KENDALL & CO. Enosburgh Falls, Vermont. 127d.

Conquering a Mule.

"Ben Appleby, of St. Louis, had a mule," said the stableman, "which was one of the knowingest cusses you ever saw. I dunno where Ben found him, but, one day he came drivin' home with th's mule hitched ter the tail end of his wagon. He was an innocent lookin' animal, plump an' fat, an' looked like he was goin' to be good fer suthin'. Well, the next day after Ben got 'im home he tried ter hitch 'im up, but he wouldn't be hitched. He jest everlastin'ly kicked the wagon inter splinters. He kicked one end onter ther stable, an' kicked ther stall down, an' kicked everything in sight. Ben took him out in the corn-field one day, an' hitched 'im to a plow, but he up an' kicked that plow over inter ther next lot. He was all right under saddle, but ther minit Ben tried ter hitch 'im ter anything he jest kicked it onter sight. No matter where he was, if things didn't suit 'im, he jest let himself out an' kicked. Nobody but Ben dast go near 'im. Well, finally he discovered that everybody was scared of 'im, an' he got the idee that he was the greatest mule in that section of ther country. He had a way of cockin' one ear forward an' the other backwards, an' winkin' one eye when any one came near 'im, as much as to say: 'Git on to me; I'm Ben Appleby's kickin' mule, an' don't yer forget it.' When Ben would be ridin' 'im 'long ther road an' they'd pass another mule, he'd just git his ears in position an' wink an' grin as much as ter say: 'I'm the only mule in this country. I'm a kicker, I am.' He seemed to understand that he had the dead wood on Ben, an' ther nobody could hitch 'im to no sort of vehicle. He got chuck, ram, jam full of conceit, an' use ter parade hisself aroun' the barnyard like he owned the place. Ben made up his mind as how the mule wouldn't never be no 'count tell he was broke to drive in harness. He tried all sorts 'er ways. He hitched 'im to a mowin' machine, an' the result was he had ter git a new machine. The mule kicked it all onter shape. He broke up everything that Ben tried ter hitch 'im to. Bimeby Ben got mad. He swore he'd take the conceit onter that animal if it tuk his hull farm. Then he begun to study up ther case, till, one day a man came along with one of them farm engines what they run thrashin' machines with. Ben says to 'im, 'I'll give yer five dollars if you'll let me hitch my mule ter that mersheen.' 'Git out yer mule,' sez the man, an' Ben led 'im onter the stable. 'He can't pull it,' sez the man. 'Never mine,' sez Ben. 'he kin try it.' So he led the mule out in the road, an' the mule he knowed in a minit what was goin' on. He cocked his ears backwards an' forrards, an' grinned and sez to hisself:

"They'm goin' to hitch me to that thing. Dog-gone my skin, I'll kick it inter the next county. I'm Ben Appleby's kickin' mule, I am. Watch me now an' see how I do it."

Well, Ben an' the man got 'im hitched up to the mersheen an' he began to kick agin ther boiler-head. He kicked, an' he kicked, an' he kicked, but the mersheen never budged. Ben an' the man sat on the fence a watchin' the job, an' the man a laughin' to kill hisself. Ben looked kinder satisfied, but he never fetched a smile. Bimeby the mule settled down on his four legs, an' swung his head aroun' an' said to hisself:

"Wat kind of a dog-gone vehiele is this, any how? She don't fetch worth a cent. Maybe somethin's the matter with my legs. I'll go for it agin, any how."

An' he set his teeth together an' began to kick agin'. Well, sir, he hammered his heels agin' that boiler-head till he was black in the face, but she never weakened. Then he'd stop an' take breath an' swear, an' then he'd kick agin'. Well, sir, he kep' that up fur half an hour, till he was as weak as a cat, an' then he stopped an' dopped both ears forrard an' cried like a bibly. Ben let 'im stan' there a little while an' then he onty tched 'im an' took 'im back to the stable. The next day he hitched 'im up to a buggy, an' he trotted off without sayin' a word, an' to-day he's as decent an' respectable a mule as they is in the county. Ben's wife drives 'im to town mos' every day in a fayton.—

Muscle-Beating.

In Riga, Russia, there is a gymnasium at which many diseases are cured by heating the surface of the body with the hands, or instruments called "muscle-beaters."

These instruments consist of three elastic tubes fastened together at the handle; the circumference of each tube is about that of a finger, its length, as also the thickness of the material of which it is made, varies according to the different purposes for which it is made.

Dr. Klemm, the manager of the institution, holds that, as so much refuse matter is constantly thrown off through the skin, it is of the utmost importance that th's organ should be kept in the best possible condition, and that the best method of doing this and promoting nerve currents and blood circulation, is muscle-beating.

He further holds that the advantage of th's manipulation over all others, is that it makes the texture of the skin softer and more elastic, and that its action spreads deeper and not only promotes nutrition of muscle, but also the activity of the blood-vessels of the bones.

It is especially beneficial in cases of rheumatism and all chronic diseases resulting from an impaired circulation of the blood.

If the surface of the body is cold at any point, it is an indication of an obstructed circulation, and by slapping with the hands or beaters, till the parts are warm, the equilibrium of the circulation is restored, and serious consequences to health are often averted.

It is a very old custom to treat the diseases of the human body by mechanical means. The most ancient peoples, the Egyptians and Indians, had in use many different manipulations and exercises of the body for the purpose of aiding the curative tendencies of nature. Dr. Karel, physician to His Imperial Majesty, the Emperor of Russia, says he agrees completely with the principles laid down in a work on this subject and that they are based on the natural sciences.—B. M. P.

—A society sensation caused much comment in Geneva, N. Y. Some time since invitations were issued for the wedding of Miss Minnie Curtis, of Geneva, and Dr. Frank Smedley, of Avon. Preparations were made on the most magnificent scale, when suddenly the fact leaked out that the couple had been married some time previous. For a time this rumor was energetically denied by the friends of both parties. The truth of the rumor was finally established, however, by the confession of Miss Curtis herself. She stated that while out riding last June with Dr. Smedley he dared her to marry him, a challenge which she accepted, and the ceremony was performed by a clergyman in Henrietta. They intended to keep the whole affair a secret, but somehow it leaked out. Mr. and Mrs. Curtis, therefore, sent notes to the invited guests stating that the ceremony would not take place.—Chicago Times.

The Secretary of the Pittsburg Iron Association states that the constitutionality of the Tariff Bill will probably be tested in the courts at an early day. The point upon which the fight will be made is the power of the Senate to originate revenue measures.

Dr. Rusin, of Chicago, and the National Distillers' Association says the Government will lose the interest to the amount of about $20,000 a year by the failure to pass the bonded whisky bill as all the Bourbon whisky in the country in excess of the demand for the next ten years will be shipped out of the United States at once. Large warehouses have already been engaged at Liverpool. It only costs twelve cents a gallon to ship it, and there is no duty on the importation of previously exported goods. The cost of shipment is but little more than the interest on the tax, and the owner gets the benefit of the improvement in the value of the goods.

We find, from an examination of the poll books, that at the recent primary election, out of the thirty-six officers who conducted the election, sixteen of them voted for Kehoe, fourteen voted for Gooding, three voted for Taylor, and three declined to vote for any of the candidates.

This statement should be a complete answer to all charges or insinuations that the Executive Committee or its Chairman acted unfairly. The returning board was composed of the County Judge, County Clerk and High Sheriff, whose duty it is to count the vote at all State and County elections, and no one will be mean enough to charge such officers with certifying to a false count. We trust that the late unpleasantness has already been forgotten, and that Democrats will be united in the support of the candidate who has been chosen by a party method to make the race for Representative.

The Courier-Journal says: The revenue officers in Kentucky will be on trial within a short time. Captain T. C. Tracie, the agent in charge of revenue matters in the State, has been ordered to make an examination of all the gaugers, storekeepers and tobacco inspectors in the State. The examination will be made with the view of ascertaining the personal and official fitness of each man to perform the duties of the office which he holds, and the test will be written as well as oral. This examination has no connection with the provisions of the Civil Service Bill, but is ordered by the Department of Internal Revenue.

The following good words for Maysville are from the Carlisle Mercury:

Maysville is to have a street railroad three miles long. With her water works, street railroad and other modern conveniences Maysville is destined to grow rapidly the next few years. She already supports a number of large manufacturing, a daily newspaper besides three or four good weekly papers. Vive la Maysville.

As authority upon such subjects says that wedding celebrations are graded from cotton to diamond after this manner: At the end of the first year, the cotton wedding; at the end of the second year, the paper wedding; at three, the leather; at five, the wooden; at seven, the woolen; at ten, the tin; at twelve, the silk or fine linen, or both; at fifteen, the crystal; at twenty, the china; at twenty-five, silver. After this the gifts grow more and more costly. At the end of thirty years the pearl wedding occurs; at the fiftieth anniversary, the golden, and at the seventy-fifth, the diamond.

FIRE AT THE FAIR GROUNDS.

Four Large Stables Completely Destroyed—Loss $2,000.

About three o'clock yesterday afternoon fire was discovered in one of the row of four stables at the Fair Grounds. A high wind was prevailing at the time and in a moment the whole building was enveloped in flames. There is a space of about twenty-five feet between the stables, but so great was the heat that the fire leaped from one to another with great rapidity, and in a few minutes all of the four stables were on fire. The lofts of two of them were filled with straw which made the stables burn like tinder and in half an hour from the first discovery all four of the stables were burnt to the ground. The origin of the fire is unknown, but the flames were first seen bursting from the second stable west of the amphitheatre. There were a number of workmen engaged in getting the track in order for the spring races but none of them knew of the fire until the flames burst through the roof. Mr. Thos. Williams, the sub-contractor for repairing the track, had gone through all of the stables a few minutes before the fire without noticing anything wrong or seeing anyone about, and it was a mystery how the fire originated. By the efforts of the workmen present and others who soon assembled, the fire was prevented from catching the cattle stable, which was only twenty-five feet distant, and the granary also. The roof of the latter did take fire but was put out by one of the men who climbed to the roof and threw on the water that was handed to him by the others. The wind-mill narrowly escaped; it caught afire, and for quite a time no one would venture to climb the latter up to its top where the fire was. At last, however, a man mounted and the blaze was soon extinguished. The machinery was not injured but the frame work will have to be renewed. Fears were entertained at first for the safety of the amphitheatre, as the wind was so high, but it was too far off and the fence leading to it was promptly torn down in several places, thus cutting off connection.

The loss was about $2,000, on which was $1,600 insurance. Besides this, Mr. Thos. Williams lost his farm wagon which was in the stable, and Mr. Richard Young lost $50 worth of fresh straw which he had just put in. The fire will not interfere at all with the races, as there are still two large stables remaining, sufficient to accommodate all the entries, and those burnt will be rebuilt at once and completed long before the races come off.

Card.

El. Bulletin: The following appeared in the Republican of last Saturday:

"On Wednesday night Chester was the scene of what might have proved a serious affair. It seems a man by the name of Williams made false accusations several weeks ago against another citizen named Burke. The latter met Williams shortly afterwards and administered a severe thrashing to him. Williams didn't like the lesson tonight him and on Wednesday night went to Burke's residence with a number of friends all filled with bad whisky and several armed with revolvers."

I desire to say through your paper that the statement is untrue and does me great injustice. I never made a false accusation against Mr. Burke, nor did he administer a severe thrashing to me. I was not at his house with the crowd referred to, but on the contrary was at home attending to my own business, on the night named. Shortly after the two boys who composed the alleged crowd were arrested about fifteen persons armed with shot guns and revolvers searched my house and found me there with my boots off and ready to go to bed. I am a peaceable law-abiding man and do not engage in any of the lawlessness such as the Republican charges me with. OLIVER WILLIAMS.

PERSONALS.

Points About People Here and Elsewhere.

Mr. Robert Bruce, late of the Bonanza is now second clerk on the Morning Mail.

Miss Lizzie Miller, of Millersburg, is visiting the family of Dr. A. H. Wall, of this city.

Mr. Roby McCall, freight clerk of the Bonanza, is very sick. Mr. Wm. Kirchner is temporarily in his place.

Mr. W. W. Bean, President of the Newport and Dayton Street Railway Company, was in the city, yesterday and called to see the BULLETIN.

The following is from the Carlisle Mercury:

At the residence of W. W. Holton, her son, in Maysville, on Saturday last, Mrs. Ann Holton, aged eighty-one years, Mrs. Holton was the mother of Mrs. G. R. Keller, and it is with a feeling of delicacy that we record a word of her long and useful life, but duty seems to demand of us that we should write of one we loved to honor in life. She was left thirty odd years ago, a widow with six children, and their welfare, of course, was the care of her heart and the subject of her prayers, but by good fortune a mother never had the love and honor of her children more completely, than did our mother. She was watched and cared for by them with the solicitude of a lover. Her wants were anticipated, and every wish supplied. She lived the life of a faithful Christian, and died with the full assurance of faith. Peace be to her ashes, and honor to her blessed name and pure life.

THE PORTSMOUTH (O.) TRIBUNE SAYS:

Among those who gathered to pay the last tribute to Sir J. O. Murdick, was a delegation from Maysville Commandery, under command of Captain General W. P. Coons, comprising the following Knights: A. P. Coons, Garrett S. Wall, Horace January, James C. Owens, Geo. T. Simonds, J. A. Newell, L. Foster, John L. Whitaker, Robt. Bissett, Jno. Heiser and Sam. Riley, numbering among them four Past Knight-Commanders and several of the Past Grand officers of the State of Kentucky. The death of Sir Murdick, Warden of Calvary Commandery, occurring, as it did, at his post of duty while attending the funeral services of their beloved Captain General, Thos. L. Jones, has awakened a deep feeling of sympathy throughout the order, both for the family and the Commandery that has been so suddenly bereft of two of its best officers. The Knights of Calvary Commandery feel very thankful for this expression of sympathy from the Maysville Knights, who can be assured that it will ever be held in grateful remembrance.

Lord Ward, it is stated, offered Sarah Bernhardt $25,000 for the ragged little suit she wore when her talent was discovered by her first patron. The intrinsic value of the wearables is calculated at $3d., British. But Donna Sol, respecting her history, refused the money. The Marquis of Hertford, it is known, offered Rachel two diamonds worth twenty thousand francs in exchange for the famous guitar she used when a poor child singing for bread in the streets of Paris, and which she always carried with her enclosed in a velvet case. "Not for all the crown of Victoria," she replied. The Marquis had a remarkable collection of personal souvenirs—the piano of Malibran, the sofa of Sophie Arnold, the umbrella of Garrick, the fan of Mlle. Mars, the watch of Talma, and the last bottle of Maderia wine which Kean drank from, and which fell from his hand half emptied.

A Chicago drummer having hired a horse and taken a ride of ten miles over a horrible highway in Wisconsin, to work up a trade with a new dealer, reached the four corners to find the store closed. The proprietor was outside the door with an old ax, and his wife on the inside with an old shotgun. "I represent the wholesale grocery firm of Sugar, Starch & Co., Chicago," said the traveler as he drove up.

"Yes," replied the merchant, as he leaned on his ax.

"And I'd like to show some samples and take your order."

"Are you in a hurry?"

"Well, no."

"Then you'd better hitch to the fence over there and wait around a spell."

"What's the row here?"

"Nothing very much. The old woman's inside and I'm out here. It's been that way for the last three hours, but the climax is coming. She ain't got morn'n enuff powder for one more shot, and as soon as she fires that we'll find out who runs this business. If I do, I'll give you an order; if she does, you'd better be ready to skip, for she's determined to go out of the mercantile business, and make a trip to Europe with a lightning rod man."—Exchange.

Ayer's Hair Vigor stimulates the hair cells to healthy action, and promotes a vigorous growth. It contains all that can be supplied to make the natural hair beautiful and abundant; keeps the scalp free from dandruff, prevents the hair from becoming dry and harsh, and makes it flexible and glossy.

When the blood is loaded with impurities, and moves sluggishly in the veins, an alterative is needed, as this condition of the vital fluid cannot last long without serious results. There is nothing better than Ayer's Sarsaparilla to purify the blood and impart energy to the system.

The Wooden Toothpick.

Wooden toothpicks are an American invention, and their use is confined to America still. They are manufactured by machinery in New England, and put up in boxes of one thousand each, retail at ten cents a thousand and wholesale at five cents. Five cents for one thousand clean, serviceable toothpicks is so trivial a cost that the picks are no longer considered a luxury. On the contrary, they are given away at every hotel, restaurant and free-lunch counter in the city. Hotels keep boxes of them constantly upon their office counters, and all may help themselves as they please. In ordinary times, hotels like the Southern, Lindell and Laclede require a box about every two days, or five hundred a day. Some of the larger restaurants use over a box a day. Indeed, any establishment that sets out five hundred meals a day will require one thousand picks for the same time, as customers will average two apiece. In such times as fair week the consumption of the little wooden slivers is trebled, of course. The reason why men are accustomed to take several picks after a meal is because they have found by experience that a hunk of eating-house beef, well wedged in between two teeth, will require more than one to dislodge it. The wooden picks are only good for light use, and cannot be made crow-bars of.

Primarily, toothpicks are for picking the teeth, and a careless observer might conclude that they have no other use. But let him stand for a few minutes near the door of a popular restaurant at the dinner hour and he will soon be undeceived. He will see the well-dressed customers sauntering out, each with his toothpick, and for every one who is picking his teeth he will see ten who are chewing their toothpicks. The reason for this may be that it affords an easy way of bringing the jaws gradually to rest without the shock of a sudden stoppage. The gentle mastication of the yielding toothpick is a pleasant decline from the furious motion of eating as practiced in our eating houses. It also assists, as it were, placid meditation. This may be seen by any one who will observe the calm, measured tread of the confirmed toothpick-chewer when he is engaged in his favorite exercise. This secondary, and most popular, use of the toothpick is said to be peculiar only to America, and it is this fact which makes the dealers in gold and expensive toothpicks despair of reintroducing their goods. Fancy toothpicks will never be popular in this country because they cannot be chewed.

There is a third possible use to which the toothpick may eventually come. Men who continually chew pine toothpicks will sooner or later acquire a fondness for the taste of pine, and keen boarding-house keepers may then take advantage of this taste and introduce picks into various articles of food. With in another decade we may be calmly eating toothpick soup, which will strongly resemble vermicelli soup in appearance. Boiling the slivers may make them much more palatable than when raw—and everybody eats them raw. Cut up into shoe-peg length and holed, toothpicks may prove an agreeable substitute for rice; and slyly introduced into hash, they will certainly be an improvement upon the bones and buttons of the present day. These ideas are not thrown out for the benefit of the boarding-house keepers, but to warn the American toothpick-chewing public of what is probably in store for them if they persist in their pine-wood mastications.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

—Rye tea cakes or breakfast cakes are made of one part of sweet milk, two eggs, one tablespoonful of brown sugar, half a teaspoonful of salt, stir in this enough flour to make a batter about like griddle-cake batter (rye flour is tied to be used). Bake in well-buttered gem pans for half an hour. If the cook prefers to do so, she can use part rye and part wheat flour.—N. Y. Post.

—To make almond cakes, take one pound of flour, half a pound of loaf sugar, quarter of a pound of butter, two ounces of bitter almonds, two eggs, and a tablespoonful of vinegar.—St. Louis Globe.

Rev. Father Wilds' EXPERIENCE.

The Rev. Z. P. Wilds, well-known city missionary in New York, and brother of the late eminent Judge Wilds, of the Massachusetts Supreme Court, writes as follows:

"78 E. 54th St., New York, May 16, 1882.

Messrs. J. C. AYER & Co., Gentlemen:

Last winter I was troubled with a most uncomfortable itching humor affecting more especially my limbs, which itched so intolerably at night, and burned so intensely, that I could scarcely bear any clothing over them. I was also a sufferer from a severe catarrh and catarrhal cough; my appetite was poor, and my system a good deal run down. Knowing the value of AYER'S SARSAPARILLA, by observation of many other cases, and from personal use in former years, I began taking it for the above-named disorders. My appetite improved almost from the first dose. After a short time the fever and itching were allayed, and all signs of irritation of the skin disappeared. My catarrh and cough were also cured by the same means, and my general health greatly improved, until it is now excellent. I feel a hundred per cent stronger, and I attribute these results to the use of the SARSAPARILLA, which I recommend with all confidence as the best blood medicine ever devised. I took it in small doses three times a day, and used, in all, less than two bottles. I place these facts at your service, hoping their publication may do good.

Yours respectfully, Z. P. WILDS.

The above instance is but one of the many constantly coming to our notice, which prove the perfect adaptability of AYER'S SARSAPARILLA to the cure of all diseases arising from impure or impoverished blood, and a weakened vitality.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla

cleanses, enriches, and strengthens the blood, stimulates the action of the stomach and bowels, and thereby enables the system to resist and overcome the attacks of all Scrofulous Diseases, Eruptions of the Skin, Rheumatism, Catarrh, General Debility, and all disorders resulting from poor or corrupted blood and a low state of the system.
